

ABSTRACT

The present invention is to provide graphic data which a user wants speedily in accordance with a simplified procedure without reserving graphic data.

A server side merely transmits real data which is a base of graphics and a variable program, so that all of graphic data production and CAD format conversion are performed by an automatically installed program on a client side.